19 ST. JOHN IN A VISION, supported by two angels; full length figures, the size of life

The elevated character, the careful drawing, the glowing colouring, the admirable body, renders this picture one of the most beautiful by this rare master.

This picture, previously to the French Revolution, formed one of the principal ornaments of the Giustiniani Gallery at Rome. When the Giustiniani Gallery was sent to Paris, it was purchased by Delahante, who sold it to Mr. Harris. It subsequently passed from the possession of R. H. Davies, M.P., into that of the present owners.

23 THE PLAGUE OF ATHENS

70
"It is perhaps impossible for art to depict with greater pathos or more solemn effect a subject so heart-rending as this picture exhibits. The view is a street of the splendid city of Athens, over which numbers of the plague-stricken inhabitants are distributed, some extended on the ground, others prostrated at the portals of the temples and public buildings. Among a group of the afflicted in the foreground are three women, two of them lying on mattresses, and the third seated at the side; near the latter stands a man in a state of distraction, wildly tearing his hair with both hands, close to this person are two men and a woman sitting by the side of a dying female whose noisome stench compels them to close their nostrils, with this group is an infant standing by the side of its deceased parent. It would be harrowing to describe all the scenes of misery and dismay which meet the eye in every part of the picture, the very air appears pregnant with pestilence, and death in his most horrible aspect reigns triumphant throughout."—See Smith's 'Catalogue Raisonné,' vol. viii. p. 96.

RAFFAELLE.

- 24 THE VIRGIN WITH THE INFANT JESUS. The Virgin lifting the veil from the Child, which has just awakened, and with much animation stretches out his arms to her

The composition agrees entirely with the celebrated Loretto picture brought by the French to Paris, and which has disappeared since the Restoration.

The colouring is throughout, even in the half shadows, extremely clear.

27 THE CONVERSION OF SAUL

Agnew?

 "This magnificent picture offers a composition of extraordinary grandeur.

"The principal group consists of four horsemen and six figures on foot, the whole of which are thrown into confusion by the supernatural appearance of the Saviour in the heavens. Saul, the object of this visitation, struck with terror, lies prostrate and senseless on his back in the foreground with one leg on the horse's back, which has fallen forwards upon its knee, at the same instant one of his attendants is stooping at his head to assist him; a little retired from these is another of his escort mounted upon a terrified horse rearing upright, and beyond him is an armed standard bearer. On the right of the picture is a third soldier clad in armour riding a fiery charger, which is kicking up behind; those of Saul's attendants on foot are equally affected with terror and dismay.

"A brilliant light emanating from the Saviour is diffused over the centre group, producing an effect at once awful and sublime. In whatever view this superb production is considered, whether with regard to composition and drawing, the richness and glow of the colouring, or the masterly boldness and freedom of the handling, the mind and eye of the connoisseur will dwell upon it with real delight, and confess it to be a work of the highest excellence."—See Smith's 'Catalogue Raisonné,' vol. ii. p. 147.

Engraved by Bolswert

This noble gallery picture was formerly the property of M. de Montesquieu, of whose family it was purchased by Mr. Delahante, to whom the country is indebted for the importation of many first-rate pictures.

Mr. Hastings Elwyn became the possessor of it in 1806, from him it passed into the collection of R. H. Davies, Esq., M.P., at the sum of 4000 guineas.

28 THE WOMAN TAKEN IN ADULTERY.

Agnew.

"The composition consists of five principal and seven subordinate figures of the size of life, seen down to the middle. The accused woman with a countenance expressive of deep repentance stands in the centre, and her chief accusers are on her left, the nearest, in a sacerdotal habit and wearing a phylactery on his forehead, is said to have been intended for a portrait of Calvin, the other for that of Luther. The former, with a peculiar archness of expression, accompanied by a suitable action, appears to have made the charge, and is reciting the law laid down by Moses "That such should be stoned, but what sayest thou?"—whilst the latter, with a stoical calmness, has his eyes fixed on the Saviour, who stands on the opposite side in an attitude of appeal to these accusers. The head of a venerable man seen on the woman's right is considered to be a portrait of Rubens' master, Otho Venius. Great expression and splendid colouring are the chief characteristics of this capital picture, which is said to have been painted for the family of Knuyf of Antwerp, and devolved by inheritance to the celebrated collector, the Canon Knuyf."—See Smith's 'Catalogue Raisonné,' part ii. No. 796.
